

TIME

The Past trails after, never catches up. . .
Its wine drains out, as from a broken cup.

The Future flees to tease us by its dance,
Forever out of reach, as we advance.

But Now, the Present—that is all we own,
To waste. . .or offer back to God alone.

— David L. Hatton, 10/4/2003